Urban Areas Win Legislature Re-apportionment Battle

In another of its historic decisions which has in recent years changed long established and acceped customs by which the citizens of these United States have lived, the Supreme Court Monday decreed that the membership of state legislatures in both the Senate and House must be based on population.

Basically, it means that the large population centers (urban areas) will elect and control legislative processes, To the rural areas, who for the most part over the years have controlled one or both houses of their respective states, it means a reduced voice in the legislature.

The decision will have an impact on the legislatures of all fifty states, some immediately, others in a few years, as reapportionment taken place.

The decision Monday was primarily directed at six states, namely: New York, Virginia, Delaware, Alabama, Colorado and Marylnd. However, pending cases on reapportionment before the court involve thirty or more states. Based on this ruling no states appear free from some readjustment of their legislature.

Florida, which reapportioned its legislature prior to the 1963 session, is one of the states involved in a pending case before the court. There is no doubt that Florida's legislature under the court's ruling is unconstitutional, as presently established. The Florida legislature presently has 112 members in its House of Representatives and 43 members in its Senate, should a constitutional amendment pass in November. This is a reduction in toal number which served in the 1963 legislature.

Palm Beach County has four House members and one Senator.

Since 1955 the Florida legislature has met numerous times in both regular and special sessions on reapportionment. In all its proposals the members have accepted as basic that one House would be apportioned on

Fire Works Ban To Be Enforced

Strict surveillance this year on sale of fireworks was promised Tuesday by Lt. O. J. Senecal, officer in charge of the local Sheriff's Subdivision, who warned merchants not to sell to anyone except persons or organizations allowed to have fireworks for special celebrations.

Surveillance has been promised to cut injuries to adults and children during the forthcoming holidays. State law prohibits sale of fireworks. A maximum fine of $100.00 and / or jail sentence of 90 days could be imposed upon conviction.

Four Trucks Stolen Here In Past Week

Four stolen trucks are reported by the local Sheriff's department, in each case appropriated by employees who were "heading North" as the farming season draws to a close here.

One of the first two, taken by George Green, Negro employee of Billy Rogers farms, was recovered in Key West and returned here last Monday. The subject took one truck from the farm, abandoned it, and took a second. Both were recovered.

Two other trucks are still at large as of Wednesday, the department reported.

Edwin M. Lively Reappointed

Secretary of State Tom Adams today announced the recommissioning of Edwin M. Lively, Post Office Box 988, Belle Glade, Florida, as Member, Southwestern Palm Beach County Public Hospital Board.

Glades Folks Are "Safety - Minded"

Marking the first time a Regional Safety Conference was ever held in Southern Florida, the meeting conducted last week in West Palm Beach by Florida Industrial Commission drew the largest crowd ever to attend their annual sessions.

Of the 300 who attended, 100 were from the Glades area, Industrial Safety Representative Ian M. Edward reported.

South Bay To Hear Davis On Charges In Session Tonight

The City Commission at its regular meeting on last Thursday evening voted to continue the hearing on charges against Police Chief Marvin Davis June 18th.

The continuance had been sought by Davis' attorney, Hal Ives of West Palm Beacah, who had informed council members he could not be present on the 11th, as he had to be in Tallahassee on other business.

The commission also voted to employ Miss Myrtice Gilman as a full-time Summer Recreational Director at Jeffries Memorial Park. Miss Gillman has been working part time year round but will be full-time for the Summer months.

The Commission also studied the report of the Planning and Zoning Board concerning re-zoning several pieces of property. The Commission voted to advertise these changes after which vote would be taken by Commission.

City Got $17,396 Cigarette Taxes

The City of Belle Glade received $17,395.63 as its share of cigarette tax collection for April, the State Beverage Department reported on June 5. City of Pahokee collected $5,675.77; South Bay 2,836.60 and Clewiston $6,086.04.

Cattle Raising In Glades To Come To Fore As More Diversified Farming Plans Unfold

The Glades cattle industry, temporarily forced to take a back seat to the expanding sugar cane production here, appears to have reached the calm before the storm.

Like a toddler at the advent of a new arrival, the slight has been temporarry . . . and local farmers are eyeing a more diversified farming program with emphasis on cattle growing, while out of staters are making daily inquiries about cattle land.

The fact that cane and vegetables require close-in (near the Lake) "warm" lands has meant relocating of cattle fields on additional land that has become more usuable each year as the Flood Control program became more activated.

Improved drainage since 1948, which has included deepening of the St. Lucie Canal, the Caloosahatchee, Miami, North New River and West Palm Beach canals, plus the installation of pumps and perimeter dikes around Glades lands, brought cattle to the fore as a major Glades industry up until two years ago.

One cattleman expressed the situation this way: "It is unfortunate for the cattlemen that sugar cane boomed into this area at this particular time of the cattle cycle . . . it slowed down beef production here, but the Glades will continue to be the place where the most beef can be produced on grass for the smallest production cost."

Work of the Everglades Experiment Station over the years has shown how to produce grasses containing from 12 to 16 per cent protein, as well as the ype of grasses that grow best here: Para, St. Augustine and Carib.

Experience has proven that a pound of beef can be produced cheaper in the Glades than anywhere in the U. S.

"We believe the cattle industry has a very brilliant future in the Glades," Mr. Sanchez of the Big B Ranch said Wednesday. "We, at present, have a very flexible plan but are considering going into cattle in a large way, and are studying the program to present plans to the Company soon, for their consideration. We expect to divert about 10,000 of the approximate 30,000 acres being developed, to cattle raising," he said.

"Glades farmers are most fortunate to have available here the staff of educated, experienced scientists at Everglades Experiment Station to look to for guidance. They know all the angles of cattle breeding, the type of grasses that grow best on varied areas, and are most willing to share their vast knowledge with all who solicit their help," Mr. Sanchez said.

St. Augustine grass is preferred for outlying lands as it

PBC Glades Transportation Unit Has Provided Travel For 5,098

An invaluable service to the Glade has been handled by the Palm Beach County Health Department in providing the Glades Tranportation Unit for indigent patients.

This free service reports 5,098 indigent patients transported for special medical treatment and therapy that is not available in the Glades from their initial trip made on June 16, 1960, thru April 28, 1964.

The Free Transportation Unit has made it possible for the underprivileged children of the Glades to receive excellent care at dental, optical, and chest clinies, as well as therapy at the crippled Children's Home in Palm Beach. As a result of care provided, children in the area are assured of better health in the future. Many adult tubercular, cancer, and heart patients have also benefited from this facility. For specialized care the unit has taken patients to clinics in numerous counties.

Although the unit is county owned and maintained, drivers have been provided by the Christian Ministry to Migrants, under the supervision of Rev. Paul Cassen, Director. This is a period of internship for these dedicated workers ,for which they receive no compensation. From September 11, 1961 to March 7, 1963, Melvin Penticost transported 1,309 patients and made 228 trips without being involved in a traffic accident, reports show.

"The services performed by these young Christian workers is inspiring and each of them should be commended for their patience, dependability, and endurance," Mrs. Mae C. Pope, Office Manager of Glades Office Building, emphasized. "On many occasions they have transported critically ill patients to West Palm Beach, Lantana, Miami, Orlando, Tampa, and

Mill Machinery For Atlantic Sugar Shipped Out "Piggy-Back" Yesterday

A St. Louis firm, the Fulton Iron Works Company, and the Southern Railway System this week (Wed. June 17) have started the first shipment of sugar mill machinery destined for the new Atlantic Sugar Mill now under construction in Belle Glade. Shipments will continue until the last pieces of machinery are loaded in early July.

The Atlantic mill, now being constructed near Belle Glade, will be geared to grind 3,500 tons of cane daily when operations begin in the fall, and its production will increase to 6,000 tons daily when planned increased capacity is added.

A world leader in the production of sugar mill machinery, Fulton Iron Works Company has geared its production program for the new equipment to dovetail with construction schedule of the factory. The components being shipped piggy-back via Southern will arrive at the mill construction site on a schedule that will permit the sugar mill machinery to be assembled as the buildings that will house them are being constructed.

Southern's rail - highway (trailer-on-flat-car) service is providing a key role in this effort to minimize he time between plant construction and the beginning of operations.

Since the topography of the land surrounding the plant does not lend itself o the economical construction of rail spurs directly to the factory sites, the combination of long haul by rail and short haul by tractor-trailer from nearby rail-highway transfer facilities is an effective method for moving the heavy milling machinery from St. Louis to the mill location.

Postal Delivery Extended July

City delivery service will be extended to include the Sugarland Heights area effective July 1, according to Postmaster Rosa A. Nash.

A survey shows, says Mrs. Nash, that patrons of this area will only need o acquire and display house numbers and a curbside mail receptacle in order to qualify for the delivery.

Patrons wishing to avail themselves of city delivery service must meet the above requirements and file a change of address with the office. They should also start using their new address on mail immediaely.

Troop 621 Awards Presented At Court Of Honor

At the Court of Honor of Troop 621, sponsored by the Everglades Presbyterian Church, a rare and special occasion took place. Dr. Mendel Luce presented the Eagle Badge (the highest rank in scouting) to Darry Wood.

Other awards were presented to the boys in the above picture, who were recognized separately for their individual accomplishments.

This program honored the boys who advanced in the troop by attaining a higher rank, acquiring a troop office or earning any other awards such as perfect attendance, years of service.

The opening ceremonies were conducted by the troops senior patrol leader, Bruce Camplin, followed by a history of the Troop's major acivities in the past months.

Lee Cranford, troop committee chairman, gave a short talk on "Authority" and how it should be used and respected.

The Court of Honor was then closed with the scoutmasters benediction and everyone enjoyed some cool refreshments.

Another important announcement was added, that two boys of Troop 621, Victor Riedel and Gene Hollingsworth, have passed their District Board of Review and after the approval of the B. S. A. National Headquarters, these boys will receive the badge of an Eagle Scout.—Marlyn Felsing.

Mrs. Pat Clayton Appointed Clerk Of Draft Board

The appointment of Mrs. Pat Clayton as Clerk of the Local Board No. 148, Selective Service, Belle Glade, was announced this week by Lt. Colonel Harold C. Wall, AGC, State Director Florida State Headquarters, St. Augustine, Fla., this week.

Mrs. Clayton, a former Belle Glade resident, and also a former Selective Service employee took over the office duties here during the enforced illness of the late clerk, Mrs. Jane Little, who passed away May 2, 1964. Mrs. Little had been the local clerk for the past two and a half years.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton moved to Lake Worth seven years ago, but are returning to make their home here as soon as the new duplex they are building at 801 N. E. First Street is completed.

Accident Victim "Still Critical"

Eustin J. Guillory, 52, a boiler maker mechanic, who fell 17 to 20 feet about 10 o'clock Tuesday morning while at work at Atlantic Sugar Mill, was reported "still critical" by the nurse in charge at Good Samariton Hospial Wednesday afternoon.

According to unconfirmed reports, Mr. Guillory hit a beam as he went down, turning his body, and landed on his head. He was rushed to Belle Glade Memorial Hospital and immediately transferred to West Palm Beach.

Guillory is from Louisiana and has been staying at the Wesleyan Hotel, Belle Glade, while employed as a steelworker by Erie City Iron Works, subcontractors on the sugar mill construction work.

It's Progress

Resurfacing of SE Second Street east of the Postoffice between Avenue's E & C was crowned with a coat of blacktop Wednesday.

Street Supt. C. T. Pennington said he hoped to stay with the project to complete the whole street to West Palm Beach Road within the next few days. Work has simultaneously been progressing on SW 8th Street.

Wm. B. Rhodes In Running For Scotland Trip

A hole-in-one scored by William B. Rhodes, 125 S. E. Avenue F, Belle Glade, may earn him a trip for two to Scotland and $1,000. By getting an ace at the Belle Glade Municipal Golf Course, Mr. Rhodes was entered in the Old Smuggler Hole-in-One Sweepstakes, an annual competition for aces.

The winner will be announced at the end of the year.

Youth Field Dedicated

The dedication of the Jaycee Youth Field, postponed three times because of rain, was finally held Wednesday night, June 20th. Bob Lee, Personnel Director for the Glades Sugar House, acted as the Master of Ceremonies for the program. Belle Glade Mayor LeBron Williams was called upon to give the official city view of the worth the new field was to our area. Mayor Williams highly commended the Belle Glade Junior Chamber of Commerce for the work they had done in building the field, and stressed the fact that this project was a tremendous asset to the community.

Ray Alston, immediate past President of the Jaycees, under whose reign the field was constructed, reaped much praise on his fellow Jaycees, the many area citizens who donated time, equipment, and money, and the linemen who worked very hard in their off-duty hours to install the lighting system. Mr. Alston made mention of more improvements to be made on the field prior to next year's baseball season, and then called on Hoch Cooper, who was presented a beautiful plaque as the Jaycee member who was the backbone of the field construction. Mr. Cooper was the coordinator and official ramrod of the project, and donated countless hours of time and equipment as well.

At the close of the ceremony, Mr. Alston officially presented the new field to the Glades Youth Baseball, Inc., the group that manages the Farm, Little, and Pony Leagues, and now will operate and maintain the park.

Outstanding Service Recognized

Hoch Cooper (left) is presented a Jaycee Club plaque by outgoing president Ray Alston "in appreciation for efforts beyond the line of duty which made Belle Glade's new baseball field possible." The award was made at dedication ceremonies held last Wednesday night.

Newly Organized Wesleyan Service Guild Holds Pledge Service Tues.

The first meeting of the newly organized Wesleyan Service Guild was held in the parlor of the Community Methodist Church on Tuesday evening, June 9. Mrs. Nina Wallis, president, presided over the meeting and there were 15 members present and two visiors.

"It's Great To Be a Working Woman" was the title of the program presented by Miss Vida Hardee, vice-president of the Guild. The theme of the worship service, "Hands of Women at Prayer Around the World," was carried out in the worship center by a status of the "Praying Hands" beside a lighted globe.

The thought of hands clasped in prayer, not only our hands but hands of women around the world, and the Power of Righteousness that could come to the world through our hands lifted up in prayer set the mood for the pledge service which concluded the program.

Hostesses for the evening were Mrs. Helen Morris and Mrs. Alyce Huebner.

Mrs. Wallis explained the purpose and program of the Wesleyan Service Guild to those who were not familiar with it and called attention to a large display of pamphlets and other material describing the Guild and its work. The Wesleyan Service Guild, organized especially with the needs of the working woman in mind, invites all gainfully employed women to attend the meetings in the parlor of the Community Methodist Church at 8:00 p.m. on the second Tuesday evening of each month.

URBAN AREA

population and the other house apportioned on area, as well as population. In this way the rural areas usually could control at least the House or Senate.

With both Houses apportioned on population the larger counties will be able to control legislation and for the first time pass bills needed to aid urban centers. Special interests which in recent years influenced the Senate partiularly, will find it more difficult to defeat legislation exempting them from paying a proper share of state taxes.

A weighted vote appears as the only sensible solution, as it would be impossible to seat physically all new members from large population centers. Instead, a person from an urban area would be entitled to more votes than a small county.

Porkchoppers, as rural North Florida legislators have been named, will no longer be in a position to dictate, elect the speaker of the House or president of the Senate.

Over the years the larger population centers pleaded for relief, but have been denied help in aid to its cities and counties. Any change in this power struggle will involve some bitterness. Let us hope reasonable men can accomplish the change in a way that Florida will continue to progress.

Belle Glade Pastor To Exchange Pulpits With English Minister

The Rev. Luther A. Key, Pastor of the First Baptist Church, 17 N. W. Avenue B, informed the Herald of an exchange of pulpits with an English Baptist minister for the months of July and August.

The Rev. Mr. Key will occupy the pulpit of the Cambray Baptist Church, Sheltenham, Goscester, England, for the months of July and August annd the Rev. Richard R. Millington, Pastor of the Cambray Church, will occupy the pulpit of First Baptist Church, Belle Glade. The purpose of the exchange is to share with the respective churches program ideas and methods of meeting the responsibility that has been placed upon them.

The city of Cheltenham has a population of approximately 65,000. It has a cultural tradition with three fine schools of higher education, two of which have international repute. In recent decades, the city has become an industrial center, manufacturing aircraft and component parts. It is a most pleasing city beautifully situated near to the Seven Valley on the Western edge of the Cotts wold Hills, renowned for their beauty. The city is an health spa, which attracts nobility as well as the average citizen of England because of its excellent alkaline and saline waters. Many outstanding Baths are available to people suffering from arthritic and rheumatic ailments. It is a city renowed for its wide curving streets, unique shops, many parks, small lakes and rolling countryside surrounding it. It is approximately two hours by train from the city of London.

The Cambray Baptist Church dates back to 1625 when it was considered a part of the old Tewesbury Baptist Church. The present fellowship dates back more than 120 years. The present building is centrally located and is done in early Victorian architecture. The main auditorium seats in excess of 1,000 people. The building itself goes back to 1855 and was opened in that year by Charles Haddon Spurgeon, renowned English pulpiteer. The membership of the Cambray Church is small in comparison to most American churches, but this is so with most all English Baptist congregations.

The Rev. Richard R. Millington has served as Pastor of the Cambray Church for the past fifteen years. Prior to that, he was pastor of the Brixham Baptist Church, Devonshire, for 12 years. He received his theological training at South Wales Bible Training Institute. He is known throughout England as a scholarly, yet evangelist preacher, an excellent counselor and pastor. He has held many positions in Baptist circles in his respective cities and throughout the Baptist Union of Great Britian. Mrs. Millington is President-elect of the National Free Church Women's Counncil. She will take office earliy in 1965 and serve for a period of one year. She is known to be an outstanding speaker and thoroughly trained in the Missionary Program of Baptist Women throughout England.

Rev. and Mrs. Millington will arrive in Belle Glade on Tuesday, June 30th, and will be presented to the congregation of First Baptist Church Wednesday night, July 1st, at 7:45. It was announced that following the mid-week service of worship that night, a reception honoring Mr. and Mrs. Millington will be held in the Social Hall of the church. It is expected that a large number of the congregation will be present at the reception. Ministers and members from other churches within the city and surrounding area are expected to attend.

Rev. and Mrs. Key will leave Belle Glade on Thursday morning, July 2nd, for London and will arrive in Cheltenham about mid-morning on July 3rd. A reception honoring them will be held on Friday night, July 3rd, in the Cambray Church. The first sermon delivered to the respective congregations by the exchange ministers will be on Sunday, July 5th.

Methodist Pastor To Serve 3rd Year

Rev. W. R. Boland and lay reader Kenneth Lutz attended the annual conference of the Florida Methodist churches held at Southern College, Lakeland. Mrs. Boland joined them the last three days.

A covered dish supper last Sunday evening honored and welcomed Rev. Boland, who was appointed to serve as pastor the 3rd consecutive year at Community Methodist Church.

This Sunday night following church services Rev. and Mrs. Boland will hold open house at the parsonage for all members and friends.

South Bay Baptist To Honor Fathers

The First Baptist Church of South Bay will recognize Fathers next Sunday, "Father's Day" in the morning service.

The Pastor, Rev. James A. Fenton will be speaking upon the subject of: "The Place of Father in the Home." The Oldest and Youngest Fathers will be recognized at the morning worship hour.

Mothers and children why not get Dad and let's go to church this Father's Day.

Come And See

When Philip told Nathaniel that he had found the Son of God, Nathanael asked, ' 'Can there any good thing come out of Nazareth?" Philip answered him, "Come and see."

The Church of Christ, Southside, now meeting in the new building opposite the bowling alley, is sponsoring a series of gospel sermons June 21-28. These sermons will involve God's efforts to reconcile man and man's responsibility to God as taught by the scripture. The doctrine and worship of the New Testament church which Christ built (Matthew 16:18) and died for (Acts 20:28) will be discussed in the light of the scripture.

Brother Tom Butler of Lakeland, Florida, will preach at these services. He wears no man made title and teaches no man made doctrine (Mark 7:7). Brother Butler is an able student and teacher of God's Word and is determined as Paul was "not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified." (I Corinthians 2:1-2).

No collections will be taken except on the first day of the week as Paul directed the New Testament church to do (I Corinthians 11:34); but a spiritual feast will be served from the inspired scripture which contains "all things that pertain unto life and godliness" (II Peter 1:3).

If you "labour and are heavy laden" with the burdens of life, we invite you to come and learn of Christ. Christ is meek and lowly in heart and will give rest unto your soul (Matthew 11:28-30). If you have wondered why the Church of Christ is different in work and worship from the denominations of this day, these sermons will afford an excellent and convenient chance for you to find out.

A warm welcome awaits all who will come with an open mind and an open Bible to consider the riches of God's love and the depth of man's responsibility. Brother Butler will be "speaking the truth in love" (Ephesians 4:15) at 7:30 each week-day night and at 11:00 a.m. and 6:30 in the evening on Sundays (June 21-28).

Christian Scientist Told To Make Use Of God Given Spiritual Power

A call to use "spiritual pawer" to help solves the world's "thorny problems of human relations and race inequalities" greeted Christian Scientists at their Annual Meeting.

Several thousand members from many states and countries attended the meeting at The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts.

A call to use "spiritual powtian Science Board of Directors reaffirmed the church's conviction that the mightiest force on earth is "the still small voice of universal Christian idealism."

All human thinking is being stirred to its very depths, the message noted. But "the Mind of Christ surmounts divisions of creed and doctrine, and binds in one holy family all who love God and seek to do His will."

The election of Edward Froderman as the new president of the church for the coming year was announced.

His address to the gathering described "spiritual perception" as a necessity for meeting today's great human responsibilities.

"This unparalleled hour is presenting an opportunity for each of us," he said. It has become essential to "make use of our God-given spiritual power."

Mr. Froderman is a former vice-president of a Chicago bank, resigning in 1949 to enter the public practice of Christian Science healing. He moved to Boston in 1956 to serve as Manager of the church's Department of Branches and Practitioners. In 1961, he was appointed as a Trustee of the Christian Science Publishing Society, a position he still holds.

The new church president is a native of Bad-Salzuflen, Germany, emigrating to the United States as a teen-ager. Living with relatives in Chicago, Mr. Froderman soon became interested in Christian Science and enrolled in the Sunday School. He went on to become First Reader and board chairman at First Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago.

Revived religious stirrings in Eastern Europe were reported to the meeting by the Clerk, Gordon V. Comer. Applications from this region for membership in The Mother Church have begun to arrive again, ending many years of no communication, he said.

The retiring president, Mrs. Helen Wood Bauman, noted the "unlimited possibilities" open to humanity through the "healing-power of goodness" — the power "inherent in justice, mercy, truthfulness, and love" to overcome sin and disease.

This is "natural rather than miraculous," said Mrs. Bauman, editor of the church's religious periodicals.

"Energies of goodness are God--derived. They are equal to this troubled age because they are understood as divine laws and not merely personal virtues."

She quoted the Discoverer and Founder of Christian Science, Mary Baker Eddy; "The marvelous healing-power of goodness is the outflowing life of Christianity, and it characterized and dated the Christian era" (Miscellaneous Writings).

They Stood By And Watched Them Die

By LEWIS LLEWELLYN

"They have sown the wind, and they shall reap the whirlwind."*

Many of us were shocked recently when we read that 38 people ignored the calls for help of a 28-year old woman who was being stabbed to death by a male assailant on a dark street in a residential area in the borough of Queens in New York City.

They heard the cries of the mortally wounded woman, looked out through the windows of their homes, and did nothing to help her.

More recently, a five-year old fell into a swimming pool in Bridgewater, N. J., and drowned while several adults stood at the side of the pool and watched. One of the onlookers, a woman, said that she was an expert swimmer, but the water was so murky that she did not think she could see underwater, so she didn't even try.

A state police officer ran to the pool, jumped in and pulled the boy out of the water — but it was too late. In spite of efforts at artificial respiration, the lad was pronounced dead on arrival at a nearby hospital.

Other instances could be cited, in which men and women witnessed violence being done to innocent people — and failed to do anything to protect them.

Is it possible that the people of this nation have seen so much violence and death on theater screens and television tubes that they are becoming hardened to it?

Have we read so many entrancing tales of murder and crime that it no longer seems wrong to stand idly by while people die, screaming for us to come to their assistance?

The Bible says, "Whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." This may apply, not only to deeds, but also to the thoughts that we plant in our brains.

If our Bibles lie unopened in our homes, gathering dust, while we occupy our minds with the unworthy forms of entertainment which are so readily available, should we be surprised if we find that eventually our taste and our morals — as a nation — have sunk to a level that previously seemed unthinkable?

But there is something that we can do about it. The Bible tells us what kind of mental food we should provide for ourselves. "Whatsoever things are true, . . . honest, . . just, . . pure, . . . think on these things."

We can find in the Bible the medicine that we need for our sin-sick souls and our sin-sick civilization.

Film To Be Shown At Alliance Church

"Centerville Awakening," a feature sound motion picture dramatically showing what can happen to a church, its people and pastor, when they become yielded to God, will be shown Sunday night, June 21st, at 7:30 p.m. The film's appearance in this area is being sponsored by the Belle Glade Alliance Church —425 E. Canal St.

The film tells the story of how Ed and Laurie Damon, valiant soldiers of the cross, were forced by ill health to leave the mission field. Offered the pastorate of the church in Centerville, they find their congregation made up of Christians — altogether too typical — who have permitted their spiritual lives to be molded by the materialistic philosophic of our modern world.

Pastor Damon, however, had a theory. Though there may never be another national revival, any individual or group of individuals, who will meet God's conditions, may enjoy all the blessings which would accrue were a nation-wide awakening to occur.

"Centerville Awakening was produced, from its inception, in close collaboration with ministers of many denominations. The initial story treatment, the script, and the edited film were carefully analyzed by hundreds of ministers who share with Gospel Films, producers of "Centerville Awakening," "Seventeen" and other outstanding films, the conviction that, given a chance, the Holy Spirit can work mightly in hearts an lives today.

Rev. Ray Miller, evangelist, cordially invites anyone enterested to come out for the showing of this film.

Churches of Christ Scientist

The first chapter of Genesis — coupled with explanatory passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy — will form the nucleus of the Christian Science Bible Lesson this Sunday entitled "Is the Universe, Including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force?"

The Golden Text is from Psalms (33:6): "By the word of the Lord were the heavens made and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth." And from Science and Health: "All that is made is the work of God, and all is good" (p. 521).

Weekend Revival At Chosen Church

Elder Sydney McLeod, from Oklahoma, will conduct a weekend revival at the First Ind. Miss. Baptist Church. The services will begin Thursday, June 18, at 7:30 p.m. and continue through Sunday, June 21. Eld. McCleod will be here speaking in view of a call as pastor.

Eld. E. L. Johns has been pastor at the church for five years. He has been called by the Grace Baptist Church of Auburndale, Fla.

The church extends an invitation to everyone to attend the revival meeting.

Sermon Topics

Community Methodist — A. M. "Do We Want the Faith of Our Fathers?" P. M. "Be Ye Transformed." Rev. W. R. Boland, minister (Kathy Morris will also give her report of the new Methodist Camp Rustic at LeBelle, where she spent a week.)

Church of Christ — A. M. "Is the Young Man Safe?" P. M. "What Must I Do to be Saved?" Harry Darrow, Jr., evangelist.

First Baptist Church, South Bay — A. M. "The Place of Father in the Home." P. M. "What Baptist Believe Concerning the Lord's Supper." Rev. James A. Fenton, Minister.

There is no such thing as reforming the mass without reforming the individuals who compose it.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE RADIO SERIES

Are We Developing our Talents?

Read John 13:4-15

I have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you. (John 13:15).

Our school compound used to be very untidy, with papers and leaves everywhere. Then a new principal came to the school. She immediately began picking up the paper and refuse around the school yard. For a few days she did this work alone. Then the children, seeing their principal doing this, began to pick up scattered papers. Even the kindergarten children now pick up any bit of paper they see around the compound. The principal had set an example of humility and cleanliness.

In our Scripture passage from John's Gospel, we read about Jesus washing the feet of His disciples. Peter was ashamed to let his Master wash his feet, but Jesus washed them, and the feet of the others as well. The Jesus said, "I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you." By His own act of humility, Jesus taught His disciples the need for humility if they were to live godly lives.

PRAYER: Our Father, we thank Thee for the example of humility which Jesus set for us. Help us to have humility like His and to be examples to others through our humble deeds. In Jesus' name we pray. Amen.

THOUGHT FOR THE DAY

Whatever I do, I will try to do in a humble spirit, as Christ would do it.

Child's Milk Important In Summer

A campaign to remind mother to buy extra milk once school is out has been launched by the Dairy Council of South Florida.

"Every year in June there is a drop in milk consumption and we believe part of this is due to the fact that mothers forget to put extra milk on the grocery lists now that their children are home for lunch," explained, Mrs. Joanne Jack, executive director of the council.

School lunchroom managers throughout the ten counties represented by the Dairy Council are cooperating by posting notices in lunchrooms.

"I wonder where mothers, who do not buy lunchtime milk during the summer, plan to get the vital elements needed by their children," said Mrs. Jack.

She added that a quart of milk per day will furnish to a child a day's needed supply of vitamins and minerals in the following amounts: calcium, 82 per cent; phosphorous; 63 per cent; protein, 40 per cent; riboflavin, 83 per cent; Vitamin A. 30 per cent; thiamine, 22 per cent, and Vitamin D, 100 per cent.

In Dade County schools, about 27 million half pints of milk are provided a year.

In Broward County, 958,521 half pints of milk are provided the schools in an average month

In Palm Beach County a total of 933,847 half pints of milk are provided schools in an average month.

In Monroe County, a total of 87,531 half pints of milk are provided schools in an average month.

In Martin County, 51,960 half pints of milk are provided schools in an average month.

In St. Lucie County, 225,174 half pints of milk are provided schools in an average month.

In Indian River County, 817,-200 half pints of milk are provided schools in an average month.

Miss Steele Acquires Another Beauty Title

After attending the Miss Majorette of Florida Pageant in Cocoa Beach recently, Miss Beverly Steele made a quick trip to Miami, where she attended the Majorette Camp, and took lessons from outstanding twirlers in the country. Later on in the week, she won the Miss Majorette Beauty Title.

'64 Year For Color & Lots Of It

Wonderful clear, clean tones—sunshinny and bright are the big news. Miss Mary Todd, Palm Beach County Home Demonstration Agent, says the fashion colors can be divided into four groups.

They are as follows:

Pastels: The chalk-like pastels — cool as a a breeze and just as refreshing. Look for delicate and delicious blues, pinks, aquas, yellows and greens and the palest apricot and hyacinth.

Medium Pastels: A grouping of medium tones — not weak, not strong but speaking their mind. The flattering pinks are destined to be the fashion favorites. They range from a true pink blued to a mauve or lavendar shade. Greens, blues and sparkling aquamarine remain popular. Precious emerald is an invaluable addition to a woman's wardrobe.

Mexi-colors: Here are the vivid festival colors — the golden, sunshine yellows, bright orange, potent blues and greens and an intense turquoise. The pinks are sizzling and the reds are as hot as chili peppers. These fiesta hues are most frequently used in combinations which clash madly to produce vibrant prints.

Summer Larks: TThese are the subdued, well-mannered shades — deepened and / or darkened for city dressing. Most common are a deep red and a lively navy. You'll see plenty of muted greens and browns.

Of course, the parennial black and white (used together in very bold prints) and the marvelous neutrals (natural, tan, light-gray) will appear again in abundance and will look as smashing as ever. The "newsworthy new" has been outlined above. Sounds exciting to us! How about you?

Rogers Amendment Saves $642 Million In Foreign Grants and Giveaways

Congressman Paul Rogers said today that he was pleased to report that his amendment to the foreign aid program has resulted in a reduction of $642 million to date.

"This savings not only affects the overall size of foreign aid," Rogers said, "but strikes at its most objectionable part, namely gifts and grants."

Rogers' announcement came as a result of his request to the Agency for International Development, which administers the aid program, for current figures on the Rogers amendment's savings. The information is contained in a written reply from that agency.

The Florida Congressman then noted that before his amendment was adopted in 1959, foreign aid requests for gift and grant aid had reached $147 billion for that year. He said that the full effects of the amendment are now being felt and that proof may be seen in that requests for gift and grant aid this year have been reduced to $405 million.

"This is still too much money," Rogers said, "but it does show that progress is being made. Further proof may be seen in that the number of countries receiving foreign aid giveaways in 1959 was 41, as compared to 14 such countries now—an overall reduction of 27 countries."

Congressman Rogers' amendment directs the U. S. government agencies administering foreign aid to make specific plans to reduce and terminate gifts and grants in each country receiving them. It represents the first expression of Congress' intent that such plans be made.

"I believe that even more can be saved by continuing these efforts," Rogers concluded.

YARD & GARDEN

By Hervey Sharpe, Editor
Florida Agricultural Extension Service

A lawn, scantily covered with grass, is like a maiden in a bikini — there is a lot of bare area in between.

If you can keep your mind on the grass, you'll find that stripteasing takes on an opposite meaning in lawn care. It means that you can tease the lawn into covering nude earth with strips of sod.

Stripteasing knows no season, but summer is the idea time to patch up a badly worn lawn or even start a new lawn. Summer rains and warm temperature promote rapid growth.

With average luck — along with hard work — you can get an outdoor carpet laid without bare spots before winter.

So, if you have grass to plant, do it now.

Start the lawn by either sod, plug or seed. Sod is the immediate answer to a ground cover, but costs more than other methods.

Plugs take only a fraction of grass as compared with sod. Sprigging takes even less grass and is quite economical on a do-it-yourself budget.

Bermuda, St. Augustine, centipede, and carpet are sprigged on 8 to 12 inch centers. Slower-growing zoysiagrass should be sprigged on 4 to 6 inch centers, according to University of Florida Experiment Station turf experts.

Plug-set grass and grass sprigged in rows tend to turf up and give the lawn an uneven "seersucker" look. Frequent mowing and generous bi-monthly applications of nitrogen-rich fertilizer will cause the grass to level out.

On sandy soil leave the moved clippings where they fall, but on muck-type, or rich soil it is best to remove the debris. Too heavy a layer of clippings often promotes lawn diseases.

Keeping the soil moist in between showers will aid the grass to grow at top speed and cover the yard in one growing season.

Lawns may be watered any time of the day during summer. But, many folks stop watering an hour or so before sundown. They claim better luck in preventing diseases if they don't put the grass to sleep in a wet bed.

The main thing is to water lawns carefully and avoid puddling. Where puddles of water gather, the grass is likely to be scalded by sun-heated water.

Most watering systems do not put out enough water to puddle on sandy soils. If water stands in spots in the lawn, check for the reason. There may be a hard pan near the surface, or the soil may have been packed too tightly by heavy equipment when the house was built.

In any case, loosen the soil to prevent standing water from harming the grass.

Try loosening the soil with a rolling tool that has spike-like diggers. If neighbors don't have one that you can borrow, rent one from the local garden supply store.

If the soil is packed as hard as a brick floor, you are in trouble. Try spading. If you can't make a shovel dig in, then try a grub hoe or a pick.

Unless you are in "mountain climbing" condition and have hands as caloused as the minds of the neighbors who refused to loan you the dirt loosening tools it is easier to hire this brow-sweating chore out to a well-muscel laborer.

How close to keep a lawn trimmed is very important. The fine strains of bermuda and zoysias respond favorably to ½ to 1 inch mowing. The common bermuda does better if kept at least one inch tall.

Frequency of mowing, is just as important as height of cut. Some authorities say never cut more than ½ inch of grass per mowing.

3 Glades Students Are Candidates For U of F Degrees

Daniel Henry Jones, Belle Glade, was scheduled to complete requirements for a Bachelor of Law Degree June 17, at the University of Florida. Others from the area, who are among the 375 University of Florida students scheduled to complete requirements the same date are Matthew F. M. Prewitt for Bachelor of Electrical Engineering, and Linda Joyce Walker, Bachelor of Arts in Education, both of Clewiston.

Of the 375 candidates for degrees, 237 students were to become eligible for undergraduate degrees and 138 for graduate degrees.

These students will join August, December and April, 1965 graduates to be honored at the annual commencement ceremony next spring.

Power Gas Tie S. B. Growers

The Power Gas of the South Bay Little League won two games this past week to make a tie with South Bay Growers for first place in the South Bay Little League competition.

On Tuesday evening: South Bay Growers beat Okeelanta by the score of 10 to 5, while the Power Gas handed a defeat upon the South Bay Lions by the score of 11 to 2.

Last Friday evening the South Bay Lions defeated the South Bay Growers by the score of 14 to 7. Power Gas in the first game of the double-header, beat Okeelanta by the score of 9 to 4.

The South Bay Little League should prove to be very interesting throughout the rest of the season as the teams battle it out for first place. Parents let's continue to come out and give our boys the support which they need by our attendance at the games on Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:00 p.m. and 8:30 p.m.

Standings Are:

	W	L
Power Gas	4	2
South Bay Growers	4	2
Okeelanta Sugar Mill	2	4
South Bay Lions	2	4

Fast-Pitch Softball League Organized In Glades; Two Events Nightly, 7:30 at Pahokee City Park

Prison Farm Leading Softball League

The Loxahatchee Prison Farm is leading the Glades Fast Pitch Softball League with a 2-0 record after the first week of play. The Farm won their opener 18-3 as Richard Bruce limited the Bryaht Sugar Mill to three singles while his team mates pounded losing pitcher Clarence Throop for 12 hits. The Farm picked up its second win Saturday night as they held on to win an 8-6 decision from Rashley's Dry Cleaners despite solo home runs by Roy Goodson, Ernie Sales, and losing pitcher Earl Vann.

Phil Bonnell struck out 15 batters and gave up only two singles as Gity Products blanked Billy Rodgers Farms 6-0. Alvy Early's two-run triple gave Bonnell all the support he needed but singles by Jeff Barwick and Joe Davis added runs in the third inning. In other league action, Bryant Sugar got into the win column as they pinned a 11-7 loss on the Belle Glade Fugitives. Bashley's downed Geneva's Drive-In 14-4 behind Earl Vann's six-hit pitching, and then Geneva's surprised City Products with a 12-11 win over the Icemen. Junior Meadows was the winning pitcher for Geneva's while Butch Butler took the loss for City Products. Larry Marsh homered for the winners.

League Standings

Team	W	L
Laxahatchee Prison	2	0
City Products	1	1
Geneva's Drive-In	1	1
Râshley's Dry Cleaners	1	1
Bryant Sugar Mill	1	1
Billy Rodgers Farms	0	1

The "blackout" experienced by alcoholics is not a period of unconsciousness. Instead, it is similar to amnesia or loss of memory. The alcoholic may go for hours or days in this condition, and will not be able to recall anything he has done.

Games Scheduled Through Aug. 1st

A fast-pitch softball league organized in the Glades, began playing in seven-team competition last Wednesday, June 10, when the Loxahatchee team, coached by Graham Sayles won over Clarence Throop's Bryant team and Rashley's team, managed by Earl Vann took the score in play against City Products, headed by Jeff Barwick.

Other teams in the adult league are Geneva's, coached by Buddy Little; Billy Rogers Farms of South Bay, managed by Alvin Wilson and Belle Glade team, led by Junior Little.

On June 13, Loxahatchee romped Rashley's team and City Products scored over Billy Rogers.

The Sunday games saw Bryant and City products the victors when Belle Glade met Bryant and City Products played Geneva's.

Screwworm Threat May Loom Again

The Progressive Farmer magazine declares in the June issue that the screwworm may reinfest the Southeast and Southwest this year unless Congress acts to provide funds for operation of the screwworm barrier in Mexico.

"The Southeast faces infestation because the only sure protection they have is a screwworm-free Southwest," states the magazine. "In spite of a Mississippi River inspection line screwworms re-entered the Southeast three years ago. However, not a single case has been reported in Louisiana or the Southeast since the Southwest Eradiction Program got under-way."

Screwworms have been successfully pushed out of the Southwest and most of the eradiction operations are now in Mexico. Southwest producer and state funds which paid for half of the program have largely been expended. "Only U. S. Government has authority to operate in Mexico," the Progressive Farmer emphasizes. "Screwworm eradiction program, therefore, faces abandonment unless Congress acts to keep the international program going after July 1."

Veterans Prefer New Pension Law

Veterans, and the widows of veterans, receiving Veterans Administration pensions under the provisions of the old law are showing increasing interest in the new pension system that went into effect July 1, 1960.

In the first three months of 1964, more than 4,000 of these pensioners elected to receive their pensions under the new law. This compared with less than 3,500 such elections in the first three months of 1963 or an increase of 16.6 percent.

This is more significant since there were more than 1,193,000 old law pensioners in January, 1963, and less than 1,183,000 in January 1964, George S. Vought, Palm Beach County Veterans Service Officer, said.

The old pension law grants a flat rate pension and sets certain income limits. The new law raised these income limits slightly and set a sliding scale so that a greater pension payment went to those with lesser income.

All persons coming on the pension rolls on or after July 1, 1960 must receive pension under the new law . Those already on the rolls on that date have the privilege of remaining under the old law or of electing to receive pension under the new law.

Further information may be obtained from the County Veterans Service Office, 810 Datura Street, West Palm Beach.

According to the Florida Alcoholic Rehabilitation Program, three of every 100 persons in the U. S. today, suffer from the illness alcoholism.

Pvt. Henry E. Lockett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lockett, Belle Glade, Fla., is scheduled to complete eight weeks of advanced infantry training at the U. S. Army Training Center, Fort Gordon, Ga., June 20.

Lockett is receiving instruction in the use of the M-14 rifle, the 81 millimeter mortar and the 4-2 inch mortar. He is also receiving instruction in map reading, land mine warfare, communications and escape and evasion.

The 24-year-old soldier entered the Army in January 1964 and received basic training at Fort Gordon.

Lockett was graduated from Lake Shore High School in 1958 and received his batchelor of science degree from Florida Agricultural and Mechanical University, Tallahassee, in 1962. He was associated with Lockett's Service Station and Garage before entering the Army.

Chaplain (First Lieutenant) Alfred W. Meeks, son of Mrs. Vesta M. Meeks of Fourth St., Belle Glade, Fla., has completed the U. S. Air Force course for chaplains at Lackland AFB, Tex.

Chaplain Meeks, trained to direct Air Force religious and moral leadership programs, is being reassigned to the Strategic Air Command's (SAC) Turner AFB, Ga. SAC keeps the nation's intercontinental missiles and jet bombers on constant alert.

The lieutenant received his B. A. degree from Florida State University and his B. D. degree from New Orleans Baptist Theological Seminary.

The lieutenant was commissioned by direct appointment. His wife, Johnnie, is the daughter of Mrs. Felton S. Lowery of 832 E. Seventh St., Pahokee.

Touring in Formosa and Japan

According to word received from Mrs. Freedlund they are having a wonderful time: "We spent two weeks in Japan and enjoyed every minute of it — visited Tokyo, Nagaya, Kyota, Hiroshima and many other places. Saw at Fugi, the Golden Pavilion and the Taris Gate. There is a fabulous building program going on in Tokyo and other parts of Japan. We found the people industrious, clean, honest, friendly and happy.

At Peace Memorial Park in Hiroshima, engraved in marble are these words "Rest Peacefully for Never Again Will We Repeat the Same Error,.' In the museums, many people had tears running down their cheeks as they looked at photos of the H Bomp victims. Taipel, Taiwan (Formosa) resembled Florida with tropical plants, etc., though there were many mountains. We visited an Aboriginial Tribe on the country tour.

Mrs. Freedlund and Mrs. Wedgworth were in Hong King at this writing, and plan to return via Honolulu, arriving in San Francisco the last weekend in June.

Golf Trophies Given at Luncheon

Mrs. S. N. Knight entertained at a luncheon and swim party for the last meeting of the Belle Glade Ladies Golf Association at her home on Indian Mound Thursday, June 11.

During the business meeting trophies were awarded to winners in the Ladies Championship Golf Tournament held recently. Zelma Betzner was awarded trophy for champion for 1964; other trophies presented were to Mutt Wilson, runnerup in the Championship flight; Raply Weeks, consolation flight; runnerup Amy Whidden. Louise Rhodes won for low net score; Amy Whidden for low putts and Jo Knight low gross for field day.

The association voted to change the Ladies Day to Wednesday with tee off time at 9 sharp. The group will recess for the summer and meet again in September.

Others present were Bee Wood, Edith Vanlandingham, Kat Weeks, Helen McCabe, Mrs. J. W. Altman.

The Lowly Penny Does Add Up!

What ever happened to the painless penny gasoline tax that motorists were assumed to be willing to pay?

Oil Facts notes that when voters in Wisconsin were asked in a referendum whether they were willing to have their gasoline tax increased by one cent a gallon in order to speed up highway construction, they answered, by a margin of 6-1, with a resounding "no."

The proposed penny increase wasn't really very painless: it would have cost Wisconsin motorists another $13.4 million on top of the $133.9 million they were already paying through the existing 6-cent state gasoline tax and the 4-cent federal tax.

HATS OFF TO THE DAIRY INDUSTRY

JUNE IS DAIRY MONTH

WE, IN "AMERICA'S LAST FRONTIER"

Away Back When .... Was Only 47 Years!

"LOOKED KINDA TOUGH, DIDN'T WE?" Orrin Manning chuckled when asked to identify himself in the above photo, which he says was taken in the winter of 1917. The nearest barbership was in Ft. Lauderdale, he apologized. All early Glades settlers, they are, l-r: Ivan L. Van Horn, whose residence in the area dates back to 1914; George Grace, Orrin Manning, Orel Van Horn, Ivan's father; Gayle Hewlett, and standing in front of him, Everett Van Horn, next Ross Van Horn, cousin of Ivan's and Mr. Grace.

"What Was It Like Back Then"

People can't imagine the changes in the area since then, Ivan L. Van Horn said, when asked what it was like here back in 1914. "The whole picture has changed and it's difficult to describe."

"No one ever walked . . . maybe kept a trail cleared a distance of two or three blocks long to a neighbor's house . . . we did all our travelling by boat. The first time I ever saw anyone walking any distance at all came as such a surprise to me," The late Mr. H. H. Hart, (Edith Freedlund's father) and another man came by our house, walking from South Bay to what is now Lake Harbor . . . it was drizzling rain; seeing someone out walking was most unusual."

All the "high land" was covered with a dense custard apple growth, and clearing to plant was rough going . . . at a staggering cost back then of $80.00 per acre, he said. "Very different than back home in Nebraska, where you just hitched up the horses and started plowing. Here there wara no horses, no tractors .... all hand labor."

The Van Horns, coming to Florida for the father's health, settled on the Lakeshore of what is now Bean City. They planted beans, peppers, eplant and tomatoes which were loaded on boats at South Bay taken to Ft. Lauderdale to market. At times the current in the canal slowed down boat travel to a treacherous craw. "I remember trips when it took me as long as 48 hours to come from Ft. Lauderdale to South Bay," Van Horn reported The usual trip required 10 to 12 hours, he said. There were only about 75 people living here then (between Clewiston and Pahokee).

Nature provided the tranquilizers. You could hear a man from nine miles miles away calling his hogs, and the sound of a boat coming long before it appeared on the horizon.

Changes began in earnest with the planting of sugar cane by U. S. Sugar Corporation. With the clearing of land bulldozers covered over small rivers . . . the railroad branch line came into Clewiston in 1935 — still from that distance it was so quiet you could hear the train whistle from 25 miles away, he said. About this time Van Horn worked with a construction company building a road to Clewiston, and farmers started hauling their produce there for shipment.

He describes enjoyable social events and dances — one where he met his wife Gertrude McGehee Van Horn, whose parents were early pioneers, coming to the Lake area in 1910. They homesteaded portions of Ritta Island in their early days here.

He recalls vividly the '28 storm, when his parents' home was washed away . . . but all lives were saved by the family staying on a barge he was operating, tied up near South Bay.

"I went north on construction work for two or three years at a time, but always returned. When we came back in 1934 they were working on the levee here . . . that brought the biggest change in the area."

Yes . . . the Glades have a magnetic attraction . . . some folks leave . . . many leave and come back . . . but many more are joining our ranks every day.

"King of the Crackers" Was A Florida Cowboy Long Before the Era of Western Bat Masterson

PLENTY OF CATTLE ROAMED AREA IN EARLY SETTLER'S DAYS HERE

By L. E. WILL

You folks, of course, know all about those western cowpokes from seeing them on your TV screen. You know how they spent their days chasing badmen in the hills and rescuing pretty damsels in distress and shooting up the Red Dog Saloon, they didn't scarcely have time, it seems, to do much riding herd. Now you'd never learn it between commercials, but right here in Okeechobee Land we've had our cowboys too, though they didn't dress as fancy or operate just like those western guys, but they were tending their cattle here long before Jim Bowie ever whetted a knife, or Bat Masterson conked a desperado, and not only that, Florida cowboys are still working at their trade on those same old ranges that their grand pappies rode, and they are raising up their own boys to keep the good work going on.

Where their first cows came from is most anybody's guess. Quite likely some were left behind when English settlers skipped out to the Bahamas after Spain took over Florida, and we know that the Seminoles had cattle which they had to abandon or, which were stolen from them in the Indian wars. Anyway, plenty of cattle were roaming wild when the first settlers migrated down to this part of the state. Many a man got his start by catching a wild horse or two and then rounding up those loose cows. As far back as the Civil War big herds were ranging on the Arcadia prairies and they helped keep the Confederacy in meat. The biggest stock raiser at that time was Jacob Summerlin, the King of the Crackers.

Cattle Brought $6 TO $18 Per Head

Some of Summerlin's cowmen were described by Col. George F. Thompson, who had been sent here right after the war to arrange for homesteading the newly freed negroes. He visited a camp on Pease Creek (near Arcadia) where those cow hunters lived in log houses built a couple of feet above the ground, and which had neither windows nor chinking in the cracks. Their diet, so he said, was pork fried until it was like tough hide, cornbread tasting like baked sawdust, "Haiti potatoes" boiled till they were mostly water, and with everything, an ample supply of grease. Yet in spite of their repulsive diet he had to admit that these drovers were as active and hardy a class of men as could be found in any northern clime, "not like most lazy southerners" Their cattle, he said, were small, netting 500 or 600 pounds, and when sold in a batch they brought only $8 a head, though an extra fine one might sell for $14 to $18. At that time some were being shipped to Savannah or Charleston, but most were sold in Havana.

Cattle Roamed The Woods and Swamps

From those early days right on down till Flagler built his railroad to Key West, cattle raising on the north and west sides of Lake Okeechobee didn't change much till recent years. Cattlemen didn't have to own their land. The whole wide world was there for them to use. The cattle roamed the prairies, woods and swamps, wild as any deer. Although the cattlemen would ride the range and knew each cow at sight, yet he didn't have much work to do till time for the big drive in the spring. Then each owner, or maybe six or a dozen together with all their hands, would start on the roundup and the drive, which would last for several weeks. With wild whoops and hurrahs the riders would set out from their starting camps, while their supplies followed in two wheeled carts pulled by a yoke or two of oxen. Mules were no good for this, since they couldn't stand those pesky flies and mosquitoes as the oxen could, besides their small hooves got stuck in boggy places. Each man's equipment was nothing much but a mosquito bar, a blanket and a slicker, and of course, a rifle or shotgun, for after the dried beef and biscuits which the women had prepared had been used up, the cowmen got their meat by hunting game.

How "Crackers" Got their Name

These rangers were called "cow hunters" for that's exactly what they were. Every man, with his short handled, 18 foot whip or "drag," and his well trained "catch dog," would scour the swamps, palmetto thickets and piney woods, rounding up each scattered cow and steer and herd them to the nearest pen. This drag was the main tool of the cow hunter's trade. He would wrap it around the neck of a running calf, or with a rifle-like crack that could be heard for miles, kill a horsefly on an ox's rump and never put a blister on the hide. It was from their skill with these noisy whips that the cowmen got the name "Crackers." A catch dog was a mongrel with some bull dog strain which had been been trained to rout a cow from the densest brush, then hold her until the ranger would take over. He was a cow hunter's most necessary helper. He was, that is, until the screw worm came to Florida. Then every scratch in a cow's hide was quickly filled with squirming maggots, so now the poor catch dog has done lost his job.

Early Roundups And Cattle Drives

After the cattle had been penned, calves were branded and earmarked, then cows, calves and bulls were turned loose to let nature take its course, while the steers were kept in a mile square holding pen till such time as they would join the drive as the cowmen returned. After the roundups were done, then the drive began, the cattle to be sold being picked up from the pens, each one of which were a day's drive or about 12 miles apart, till there might be 600 or more in a herd. The Caloosahatchee was forded at Ft. Thompson, and the drive concontinued down the river to Punta, Rassa or Pinty Rosso, as the Crackers preferred to call it, where the animals were loaded onto the waiting schooner or steamship.

The loading once started, kept right on even into the night. By the flickering light of bonfires and lighted torches, bearded, big hatted riders drove the cattle, a dozen at a time, down the long high-boarded runway and wharf amidst whoops and shouts the clattering of hooves, the bellowing of cattle, the barking of dogs and the pistol-shot cracking of drags, while more bawling steers kept pouring from the darkness of the backwoods. That must have been a sight to see.

Cattle Sold For "Real Gold" Here

When the ship returned from Havana it would be met by settlers from as far as Bassenger, Ft. Mead or Ft. Drum with their oxcarts to load up with supplies from civilization. The cattlemen were paid in Spanish gold, usually one dubloon, worth $15.60, for each steer. A peck or more of these shining coins might be stuffed in saddle bags and left carelessly around until the owner was ready to start home. Dr. Lykes once was paid with an Octogan soap box plumb full of gold. He guarded it by spreading his saddle blanket on top and using it for a pillow that night. As one old cowman told me not so long ago, "Everybody used gold money in them days, but there wasn't much of anything that you could buy, excusing flour and sugar and coffee. People left their money laying around in cigar boxes or corn sacks or tied up in some old shirt sleeve. Most every baby's rattle was some gold dubloons in a sody tin. Thar was a heap of men who'd put their brand on other people's calves but hit seemed like thar weren't nobody so sorry as to steal that gold. Hit's again the law to own no gold now, but I reckon thar's some folks who've got some hid

USDA Joins Salute To Dairy Industry

June — the gala month that has the market cornered on graduations, weddings, vacations, sunshine, and flowers — again salutes the American dairy industry this year. This time it rings up the 28th celebration of June Dairy Month.

The U. S. Department of Agriculture's Marketing Service is cooperating with the dairy industry in the June Dairy Month observance by calling attention to the plentiful supplies of milk and other dairy products in the Southeast and across the nation.

Milk is in generous supply, the Agricultual Marketing Service says, because of continued high production which usually reaches its peak in June.

Some of the tasty, nutritious dairy products that southeastern foodstores will offer in generous supply during June are fresh whole milk, skim milk, buttermilk, condensed and evaporated milk, nonfat dry milk, butter, fresh or sour cream, a large variety of cheeses, ice cream, and ice milk.

Dairy products are the key to extra nutritious meals, say USDA nutritionists, because all are derived from milk — the leading source of calcium. Milk also provides valuable amounts of high quality protein, riboflavin, vitamin A, and other vitamins and minerals.

USDA nutritionists also report that a cup of milk contains more than 50 percent of the average daily requirement of calcium, and 20 percent of riboflavin, for a young, moderatively active man.

Children under ten need 3 to 4 cups of milk daily, while teenagers should have a quart or more a day and adults require 2 or more cups daily.

One 8-ounce cup of milk, says USDA, contains the same amounts of calcium as 1 1/3 ounces of Process Cheddar-type cheese; 1 pound of cream cheese, ¾ pound creamed cottage cheese, or 1 pint of ice cream. On the basis of their calcium content, these dairy foods may be substituted for part of the daily milk requirement.

June Dairy Month Has Long History

the enormous mechanism of June Dairy foods had one aim from its beginning — to sell milk and dairy foods and to create better understanding of the dairy industry.

As an industry-wide event, it is among the oldest and best established national promotions of its kind. It draws support not only from dairy interests, but also from many allied organizations and individuals.

June Dairy Month originated in 1937 as a "Milk Week" program pioneered by the National Dairy Council working with food and drug chain organizations and the National Milk Producers Federation. The campaign was so successful that, by the next year, it had been extended to cover a full month. June was chosen because it is traditionally a month of peak dairy supplies and highest quality.

June Dairy Month was probably the first month-long business promotion of its kind in the United States. June Dairy Month through the years received recognition not only from all segments of the dairy industry but also from government officials and private organizations in all states, and the U. S. Department of Agriculture. The idea has also spread to other countries. It has complete public acceptance.

away till yet."

Lykes Brothers Got Early Start

One of those old time cattle barons and the first one to run his cattle south of the Caloosahatchee, was Francis Asbury Hendry, who had come to Ft. Myers in 1868, then moved to Ft. Thompson up the river. In the 1880's, when a man with only 1000 head wasn't scarcely rated as a cattle man, Hendry and his family were considered to be the biggest owners in the state. He had first come to Ft. Myers as a dispatch bearer during the Indian war. In the Civil War he was a Confederate captain, in later years he served in both Senate and House of the legislature and was on the first Board of County Commissioners, but he also worked to get the county divided later on, and lived to see Hendry County named for himself.

Another cowman who was getting his start at the same time as Hendry was Dr. Howell T. Lykes, who had married the daughter of Capt. James McKay, Sr., of blockadee running fame. His seven sons, under the name of Lykes Brothers, now own 300,000 acres of pasture and citrus land, to say nothing of their 54 ocean going steamships.

One of the most famous of those old cattle barons was Ziba King, who stood six feet six, weighed 225 pounds, could outeat any competition and was unbeatable at poker. He was quite a man. Born in Georgia in 1838, he came to Tampa thirty years later, then moved to Ft. Ogden where he ran a store and began to accumulate some cattle. In 1900, of the 452,000 head of cattle in Florida, he owned 50,000 himself. Besides being an official in three banks, he had, like Hendry, served in both house and senate in the legislature, and too, he'd been a county judge. Once when the school board had been unable to pay the teachers, he paid them off himself, all in Spanish gold.

"King of Crackers" Outrated Them All

But the first, and for a long time the biggest, of all the big cattlemen was Jacob Summerlin, a Cracker to be sure, in fact he was known far and wide as King of the Crackers, a title of which he was right smart proud. He bragged that he could ride a horse and crack a whip when he was only seven years old, and that he had been the first white child born in Florida after it became U. S. territory, That had been in 1821, in Alachua County, right on the Indian border. As a boy he was friendly with Osceola and other Seminoles, but that didn't prevent him from almost being ambushed a couple of times by his old time friends after hostilities began, As early as 1859 he began to ship cattle to Cuba and before the war broke out he already had shipped thousands of head to there. Then he agreed to furnish the Confederacy with badly needed beef, hides and tallow by delivering 600 head a week during the months from April to August, by driving them from the Arcadia prairies to railhead at Baldwin up near the Georgia line, a trip of forty days. After two years of this he decided on a better way to help the cause. Teaming up with Capt. James McKay and his son Capt. James, Jr., he began to ship again to Cuba. These cattle were smuggled through the Union blockade by the McKays in their steamers SCOTTISH CHIEF and SALVOR and their sailing brig HUNTRESS. The Yankees finally burned the SCOTTISH CHIEF, captured the SALVOR and imprisoned Capt. McKay and his son Donald, but Summerlin kept on exporting beef. In Cuba his $8 steers now brought $25 to $30 in gold with which he bought wheat, flour, bacon, sugar, salt and tobacco for the hungry soldiers and the folks back home. Yet after the war old Jake was not as rich as he might have been, for a good share of his money was in Confederate bills, and besides the cattle market then was shot.

Riches No Cramp To Living Style

However, it came to life again during the Cuban Ten Year Rebellion from 1868 to 1878. Summerlin had been shipping cattle from his 800 foot pier at Punta Gorda, but now he moved and built a pier at Punta Rassa, at the Caloosahatchee River's mouth where there was not a crying thing to be seen but a government warehouse at the end of the submarine telegraph cable to Cuba. A newspaper writer, here in 1883, described Punta Rassa as "a desolate, wind swept cape, which, with its neighboring island, (Sanibel) formed a very good harbor. It would seem," he says, "that nobody would like on such a spot from choice, but here, in this desert-like place, in that ugly old building, with only the bare necessities of life around him, lives one of the richest men in Florida, who could, if he would, live in princely style anywhere in the state. Owning, as he does, the wharf at Punta Rassa and 1000 acres of land adjacent, houses and orange groves elsewhere, and tens of thousands of head of cattle, I could not realize that the little old man I found next morning engaged in cutting up a slaughtered beef, was the King of the Crackers, whose name is known throughout Florida and Cuba."

Jake Summerlin was uneducated, but that didn't prevent him from contributing land and money to start Summerlin Institute in Bartow. He already had donated to the erection of a court house in Orlando, partly to prevent General Sanford from moving the county seat to his own town. Summerlin also helped lay out the water route from the head of the Caloosahatchee to connect it with Lake Okeechobee. When Disston wanted to open the river to the lake he got those old cattlemen, Capt. Hendry and Jake Summerlin, who knew that country better than most anybody, to lay out the best route through the lakes and marshes that lay between. Partly at his own expense, Summerlin got together a party and led it himself from Ft. Thompson to Lake Hicopchee. Although he then was about sixty years old, he and Hendry waded through sawgrass in waist deep water, taking three or four hours to advance each mile, sleeping in an open boat and it plumb full of hungry mosquitoes, to set up tall flags for guiding Capt. Menge's dredge as it dug the canal that we are still using till this day.

"Just a Plain Old Sun Baked Cracker"

Summerlin used to be a mystery to those Cubans, for although to do business with them, he had to bribe them from the highest right on down the line, yet they couldn't cheat him, he wouldn't gamble and he never drank, and his wealth sure didn't go to his head.

All his life he lived, dressed, acted and talked just like his poorest cow hunters. He bragged that for twenty years he'd never worn a coat and he didn't even break that rule at the dedication of his Summerlin Institute, althugh he did go so far as to put on shoes. "I'm just a plain old sun baked Florida Cracker" he used to say.

Joe Peeples Arrives On Scene

It seems as if most of those old cattlemen, regardless of their wealth, were plumb satisfield to live just as they had done when they used to ride the range. There was Joe Peeples in recent years, who would drive in a beat up Ford from LaBelle to Tallahassee to sit in in legislative halls in his rumpled clothes smoking a corncob pipe, although his estate was appraised at a million dollars. That was just the way of a Cracker cowman, but I don't reckon there was ary man who could beat the record of old Joe Bowers of Indiantown. He had come from North Carolina to the Bartow-Wauchula area, but when the freeze in 1895 killed all his orange trees, he moved clear over to the Seminole settlment at what's now called Indiantown the first white man who ever lived there. He camped among the Seminoles, hunted with them, got adopted into their tribe and took to wearing a long tailed, striped shirt just like a blooming redskin. After awhil e Joe bought 80 acres in a hammock and planted out some citrus trees, eleven varieties before he got through. Those trees now are sixty years old but they still bear fruit as good as ever, better than some of the newer groves out there, so folks tell me.

Joe's Dairy One Of Florida's First

Joe built himself a 12 x 16 board-and-batten store there in his grove where he traded with the Indians. He even owned a dairy and had the biggest herd of range cows in that part of the country, yet Joe loved best to roam the woods hunting and looking after his cow critters. He'd sooner sleep under a mosquito bar beneath a cypress tree than in bed in his palmetto shack at home.

Now Joe Bowers was blamed near 70 years of age when he got a new idea in his head. He'd tried his hand at most everything else, so now, he allowed, he'd try his luck at getting married. He picked a right pretty local girl only sixteeen years of age to be his blushing bride. The wedding, there in his grove attended by half a thousand bug eyed. During the ceremony, Joe just so he'd feel right natural, sat on a horse, and of course, the bride and the preacher did the same. And then, the rest of that day and all the next, Joe enterained his guests with tall tales of hunting in the woods and kept all hands well supllied with ample drinking lipuor.

To be sure, Joe didn't expect his bride to be content to house keep in his old palmetto shack, so nearby he built a house of red stained logs. It had a roof of tin, a porch across the front, glass windows, and to top it all, a real sure enough bathroom with running water and everything complete. Most any woman should have been right pleasured to have a house like this, under old spreaking oaks, among those fragrant orange trees, and with a loving husband rich as all get out, but this young girl, it seems, was just

Beef Cattle Production To Rise 85% Our Area To Have Heaviest Increase

By ALMA WARREN

The value of beef produced in Florida will rise 85 per cent in the next ten years, from a current cash value on the farm of $77,000,000 to $133,000,000 by 1975, Dr. T. J. Cunha, head animal science, University of Florida, said.

In ten years Florida will be producing 700,000,000 pounds of beef as compared with 379,000,000 pounds today, Dr. Sunha predicted. Dr. Cunha presented these estimates to key agricultural leaders in the beef cattle industry at the fifth in a series of nine Operation DARE commodity meetings, planned by Dr. E. T. York, Jr., University of Florida provost for agriculture, to develop Florida's agricultural resources effectively.

Cunha's data showed that Florida is presently producing 1.08 per cent of the beef consumed in the United States. If Florida doubles its beef production by 1975, it will only be producing 1.43 per cent of the nation's total consumption. Cunha said that these statistics indicate that Florida can increase its beef production many times without having much affect on the total price structure or total beef supply in the U. S., thus putting the state in a unique position to take advantage of the potential it has for increasing beef production.

"Presently 40 pounds of beef per acre being produced in Florida. Top beef cattle producers can produce 200 to 500 pounds per acre. This means we have the potential to expand 5 to 12 times our beef production if we need to," Cunha pointed out.

Cattle Raising In The Glades

Presently, Florida is producing about 20 per cent of the high quality beef which it consumes. Thus, there is plenty of opportunity for expansion of beef in the state.

The 85 per cent increase will occur all over the state, Cunha continued, but the majority and heaviest concentration will be centered in South and Central Florida, because of the availability of land and water. However, there is much unused potential in North and West Florida, he observed.

"Florida and the Southeast comprise the area in the U. S. where we will have the most growth in the beef cattle industry in the future. This trend has been going on since 1950," Cunha told the cattlemen meeting at the University of Florida

Cunha said that about 150,000 head of steers are being fed out in Florida. By 1975 the number of steers should double.

About 7,425,444 acres are currently being used by beef cattle for grazing purposes. It is assumed that the acreage will remain the same in 1975. Today about 1,900,000 acres of improved pasture are used for beef cattle. By 1975 it is estimated that this acreage will increase 10 per cent to 2,090,000 acres.

KING OF THE CRACKERS

Continued from preceding page too hard to please. They only lived together for about a year and right soon afterwards old Joe Bowers up and died. Before he went he told a friend "There's no fool like an old fool!" I reckon he meant' himself.

Jim Durrance, 86 Last Of Cattle Barron Line

Those old range riding, cow hunting cattle barons are about all gone by now. I reckon about the last one left is old Jim Durrance up Bassenger way. He lives four miles back in the woods in a frame, dog-trot house which once had a coat of paint. There's not a wire of any kind running to his home. He can't see no good having in electric lights, and if somebody wants to talk to him, why what's to keep them from driving out? The road's not too bad. Looking at Jim Durrance's stocky figure, and his almost unwrinkled florid face, even in spite of his shock of snowy hair and great white curled up mustache, you'd swear he'd never lived the 86 years he claims.

He can remember when only three men ran cattle in these parts from Lake Okeechobee slam up to Canoe Creek near Orlando. One's range was from the St. Johns River to Ft. Drum, another claimed all from there to the Kissimmee and the third all west of that, although it didn't take long for others to come in. That was when range wars started, and some men got shot and killed. Jim Durrance had first lived at Crewesville in Hardy County, near the head of Fisheating Creek marsh, where he had an orange grove. But, he said, his neighbors would steal his oranges while he was off cow hunting, and so he got married and moved to Bassenger. "We were both orphans, "he said, "and so we had to work." He had taken part in many a drive to "Pinty Rosso," crossing the Caloosahatchee at Ft. Thompson until the rapids had been dredged out, after that the herds swam across at LaBelle where large "swimming pens" had been built on each side of the river to hold the cattle during the crossing.

"Don't Feel Sorry For the Poor Man"

I was talking to a man who knew him well. "That Mr. Durrance seems to be a mighty clever hearted man, "I said," but it's a shame that poor old man has to work so hard. There he was, on one of the hottest days in June, out in his pasture working on a fence and his wife told me that he'd been grubbing some palmettoes the day before."

"Mr. Durrance is a right fine man," my friend replied, "If anybody gets in a jam all they need to do is to ask him, and he'll help them out, but don't start getting too sorry for that "poor old man." He isn't worth thousands of dollars. He worth hundreds of thousands. He owns all thi sland hereabouts twenty-one square miles of it, and every mile is stocked with cattle. But Jim Durrance doesn't care for money and the things that it will buy. He's lived that plain way all his life, and that's just the way he likes to live."

Well, there's plenty of things in this world that are better than money, though it most generally takes money to get them, Anyway, you'll have to give credit to those old time cowmen, the King of the Crackers and all the rest, they knew how to be happy though rich.

No "Luxury Items" In East Germany Visitor Reports

Mrs. Norman Gimpel, back recently from a visit to her native East German town of Pasewalk, located in the Russian zone, reported an acute shortage in everyday toilet articles and grocery items we in America take so for granted. There your name is placed on a waiting list even for toothpaste, she said.

This was her first visit since she left in 1955 to spend three years in West Germany, coming to the States in 1958.

The whole economy is going backward under Russian rule, she said.

Mr. Gimpel, who is an engineer with Hutcheon Engineers, Inc., Belle Glade, said a flight for his wife was arranged within three days when word was received of the death of her mother. "Very little difficulty was encountered," he said, "but trying to bring her father to the States will involve a lot of red tape and may never be accomplished."

Mr. Gimpel commutes to West Palm daily, but expects to later make his home here.
